

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS OPPORTUNITY

The Democratic Governance and Rights Unit (DGRU) is running a project whose objective is to support and enhance judicial independence and the rule of law in Africa. We are seeking to appoint persons as ad hoc research assistants, whose main role would be to conduct research on ad hoc basis for judges and lawyers on the African continent.

Suitable candidates should primarily be PhD law or LLM students registered at the University of Cape Town, with demonstrable experience and track record as competent researchers.

Interested persons should submit their application constituting of a cover letter (maximum 1 page), a sample of their written research work (maximum 5 pages) and a Curriculum Vitae (maximum 2 pages) to justice.mavedzenge@uct.ac.za

Please ensure that you indicate in your Cover letter, the area of law (e.g human rights, labour law, international trade, competition law etc) that you are interested in.

Deadline for submitting applications is 8 March 2019 at 1700hrs. Please note that only those shortlisted for interviews will be contacted.
